Personal statement

Since becoming a member of Ka Lahui in the '90s, I have advocated for Hawaiian political freedom and our right to protect our culture and heritage. As a delegate, I would continue this advocacy by humbly taking on perhaps the greatest exercise in our pursuit of freedom, building a representational Hawaiian government.

I have a BA from UC Berkeley in Peace and Conflict Studies, studying topics such as colonization/decolonization and theories of economics, politics, and law, as well as conflict resolution and negotiation. Currently I am in law school. My professional background in IT has given me ample experience in working as part of a team and successfully seeing projects through to completion.

Today, I believe our path to justice can be found by pragmatically moving forward and securing our political and legal rights in our current political situation. And through nation building, we can build the political acumen to lay down the path for pursuing total independence.

If elected, I will serve na lahui by working to insure that a representational government will represent not just one but multiple paths to justice for my mo'opuna and yours.

The time has come, Hawaiians. Imua!
