Personal statement

As a delegate, my primary goal will be to help build a fair and equitable government. We have a lot of politics ahead of us, but I believe step one is ensuring that we get our government "right" so that we can empower our people to work together and make good decisions.

I come from generations of Hawaiians who have humbly devoted themselves to the Hawaiian community, especially helping those in need, maintaining our connection to one another through civic work, and perpetuating our cultural traditions. I have an undying love and sense of loyalty for our people. As a delegate I will be uncompromising in pushing for a government that will maximize our wellbeing.

I have spent most of my life cultivating a diverse and practical set of knowledge and skills that I know will lend to the success of our delegate community in building a good government. My formal education is in development with a focus in economics. I have an in-depth knowledge of real world historical processes involved in pursuing self-determination. As a professional and volunteer, I work with the Hawaiian community almost every day. If elected, I will be a strong contributor who knows how to get things done.
