

Idalia Reyes

My name is Idalia Reyes, a resident of Co-op City for over 24 years. I am president of the Building 28 Association and vice president of the Spanish-American Club, as well as a member of the NAACP. I have developed a profound passion for community development and cooperative living. With a Bachelor's degree in Communication and Media, and over 30 years of experience in corporate finance as a Senior Client Service Associate, I possess the expertise to make a meaningful contribution to the Board of Directors. My approach is centered around being a solution-driven leader, capitalizing on the community's potential for growth. Although this is my first time running for the Board of Directors, I am cognizant of the position's significance and committed to bringing the skills to address the community's needs. As a dedicated advocate for cooperative values and community-driven growth, I am eager to make a positive impact through leadership and service.

Our community is large and diverse, and I believe every individual deserves to feel secure, valued, and supported. As a Board member, I will advocate for stronger safety initiatives that reach all corners of our community — from improved public spaces to better communication and emergency preparedness.

I am passionate about creating lasting partnerships, listening to community needs, and building a safer environment for everyone.

Maintenance and leaks, as well as how they are addressed, appear to be the major concerns. The convectors, as we are all aware, pose certain issues that are being actively addressed. With persistence and accountability, progress will accelerate. Although nothing can be accomplished overnight, resolution will ultimately be achieved.

Together, we can make sure our growth is matched by an even commitment to safety and care. I would be honored to earn your trust and support.
